Denison

Taken from a tombstone in the Old Ipswich Burying Ground, Massachusetts, as illustrated in Eugene Zieber's Heraldry in America.

The cusped form of the shield came into use in the 15th Century and was very popular during the Tudor Period. The closed helmet denotes an 'Esquire' or gentleman, and the cutlass in the crest probably refers to military or naval services. The motto, Domus Grata is translated literally 'hospitable house,' by implication 'friendly house' or 'beloved home.'

Introduction

*By E. Glenn Denison

NO major genealogical work has been done on the Denison family since Baldwin and Clift compiled The Descendants of Captain George Denison in 1881. That book is now scarce and much in demand which, together with my own interest in genealogy, prompted me to undertake the following work. The task of compiling, verifying and organizing all available material, incorporating the data from previous publications, and bringing up-to-date many new lines of descent has stretched into seven years. Each new biographical sketch has been submitted to various descendants for correction and it is hoped that this re-checking has eliminated most of the possible errors.

The earliest recording is that of John Denison of Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, England, born 1530 and died 1582. His son, William, emigrated to Massachusetts in 1631 with three sons, Edward, Daniel and George. The first two left few descendants, and these will be found in the Appendix. The ancestry in England of these three brothers is in the fore part of this book.

Another early emigrant was John Denison who settled in Ontario. His descendants are quite numerous in and near Toronto and several have been prominent in Canadian civil and military affairs. A brochure on these Denisons is in the library of the Denison Homestead.

A third emigrant settled in Maine and one of his descendants founded the Dennison Manufacturing Company, makers of well-known paper specialties.

Several of Captain George Denison's descendants, who were loyalists during the Revolutionary War, went to Nova Scotia where numerous descendants are found today. Several of them are listed in the following pages.

Part I contains the data in Baldwin and Clift's The Descendants of Captain George Denison (1881) supplemented by Descendants of Isaac Denison by Rosalie D. Bowman (1904); Denison Genealogy by George B. Denison (1884); and Ancestors and Descendants of James Post Denison by Harry E. Bolton and E. Glenn Denison (1939), with additional facts and corrections supplied by Donald Lines Jacobus and Josephine Middleton Peck as a result of their researches in original town and church records.

*It is a matter of deep regret that Mr. Denison died December 11, 1962, before the publication of this his magnum opus. The debt all members of the family owe him can never be repaid, but everyone who uses this work should hold him in grateful memory.

Part II is made up of sketches of collateral descendants, chiefly those born since 1881, from family Bible records and individual, personal reports. My plan was to include only those surnamed Denison with the daughters' marriages and lists of their children. But so many descendants of these daughters, especially members of the Denison Society, wished to be included that the descendants of daughters have been added. A few Denisons mentioned have not confirmed their ancestry back to George Denison, but indications lead one to believe they belong to this family.

The records show many variant spellings of the surname. It appears as Deneyson in the Hundred Rolls of England, but Denyson, Denisone, Deniston, have also been found. On the register of St. Michael's Church, Bishop's Stortford, the name of our ancestor is written in 1563 as John Deneysen.

Several theories are propounded as to the origin of the name. I do not know which, if any, is correct. One states it was from the given name, the son of Denis or Dennis, Denison or Dennison. Some connect it with the patron saint of France, St. Denis, a common baptismal name in northeast France from where it is not unlikely the family came to England. Others hold that the name is purely English, derived from the Anglo-Saxon, Denisca, signifying Danish.

I wish to mention especially the following who have contributed greatly to this work:

Mrs. Howard F. Peck, secretary of the Denison Society, and Donald L. Jacobus, distinguished editor of The American Genealogist, my valued collaborators, who have performed the tedious tasks of checking and styling the entire manuscript and whose searches of the original records of Stonington, Groton, Ledyard, New London, Lyme, Branford, New Haven, Hartford, and several towns in Vermont and New Hampshire have added to, verified and corrected many entries in Baldwin and Clift, increasing importantly the accuracy and completeness of Part I.

Mrs. Herbert S. Davis and Mrs. George L. Denison, active members of the Denison Society, have supplied many valuable facts.

Denison H. Hatch, during whose presidency the Society sponsored this work, gave me unfailing encouragement and support.

Williams Haynes served this project well in handling the publishing details and also by permitting the reprinting of his excellent sketch of Captain George and his graceful tribute to Mrs. Gates.

Mrs. William Wylie, a Denison Homestead hostess, copied the family records in the library of Mrs. Gates, now in the Homestead.

Those who sent many biographical sketches include Anne E. Denison, Eber Denison, Mrs. Edward F. Denison, Frederick K. Denison, Lorna Denison, Robert F. Denison, Kate Mills, Alpha D. Peister, Daniel Tomlinson, and Sallie Coy. And many others who have added to the records: their names are in the Sources of Information in the Appendix.

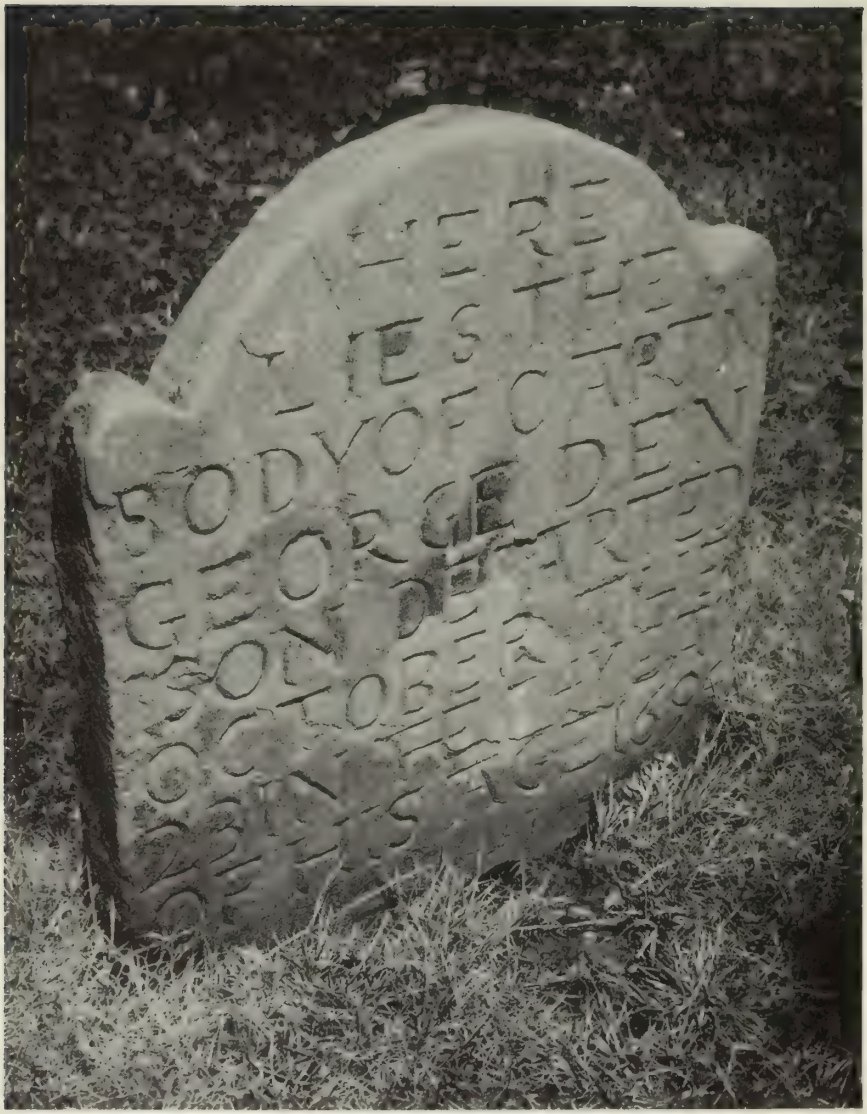
The Old Road Church

Since September 10, 1674, when Ann Borodell Denison was a "pertaker" at the ordination of James Noyes as first minister, the Denison family have been prominently identified with the 1st Congregational Church of Stonington. Her husband became officially a member in 1684. The Rev. James Noyes, who was pastor for 55 years, was chaplain of the expedition led by Capt. Denison when the Narragansett chief Canonchet was captured and four Noyes grandchildren married Denisons. The present church building (the third on this site) was dedicated October 29, 1827.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH

The parish church at Bishop's Stortford was the house of worship of the parents and grandparents of George Denison and here he was baptized in 1620. The greater part of this beautiful building was built about 1400, possibly earlier. Inside, the baptismal font was made about 1150 and the organ was installed before 1490 since the church records show that in that year John Cosyn was the salaried organist. The bells were hung in the tower in 1431.



GRAVE OF CAPT. GEORGE DENISON

During 15 sessions George Denison was Deputy for New London or Stonington at the Connecticut General Court, and he died at Hartford, while discharging this public duty, on October 24, 1694. His gravestone, which was cut by an illustrious craftsman, James Stanclift, Sr., is in the yard of the old Center Church, Hartford. His wife is buried in Elm Grove Cemetery, Mystic.

Captain George Denison*

By Williams Haynes

DENISON—an ancient English surname, the son of Denis. Since Denis was the patron saint of France, it suggests that the first English Denison landed with William the Conquerer. However, long, long before 1066 the name Denisca, signifying Danish, appears in the old Anglo-Saxon Hundred Rolls. So possibly the first Denison leaped ashore from the dragon prow of a Viking longship.

Norman soldier or Danish pirate, somewhere in the past there must have been a strong prepotent ancestor; a bold, brave man, a big man with sandy red hair, blue eyes under bushy brows, a large, high-bridged nose and a jutting jaw. George Denison, the founder of the family in America, was just such a man. Even today the family recognizes this description of him as the true Denison type.

In 1618, George Denison was born in Stortford, England; son of William Denison, described as a man of "goodly estate." Of this we may be sure, for George's three older brothers went to Cambridge University. His Uncle Edward moved to Ireland and his son John, also a Cambridge man, was a major in Cromwell's army and later deputy governor of Cork. The Denisons were obviously a family of some position.

George came to America on the Lion, a boy of thirteen, accompanying his parents and two older brothers. The eldest son, a clergyman, remained in England, During their two months' passage across the Atlantic, his father engaged the Rev. John Eliot, the future Apostle to the Indians, to tutor the boy. Under that godly man George continued his schooling at Roxbury in Massachusetts where this ship's company settled. Denison's life-long friendliness to the Indians was one result of Eliot's influence.

The first clear picture we have of George Denison is as a young man of twenty-three standing in the burying ground at Roxbury watching his wife's coffin being lowered into her grave. At the sound of the hollow thud when the first shovelful of earth fell on the rough pine box, he swung about and elbowed his way through the throng of friends and neighbors. He ran quickly out of the churchyard to his home. Without stopping to pick up a handkerchief, he galloped off to Boston and embarked on the first ship for England.

In England he enlisted in Cromwell's Ironsides to fight the Royalist forces and was commissioned a captain of the cavalry. During the battle of Naesby he was taken a prisoner, but he escaped, and at Marston Moor he was severely wounded. For his recovery he went to Cork, doubtless to be near his cousin John, and there stayed in the home of a well-to-do leather merchant, John Borodell. Like many another widower, he fell in love with his beautiful nurse, Ann Borodell, his host's daughter. They were married and just short of three years after his precipitous flight they returned to Roxbury.

The young couple were royally welcomed. The governor of Massachusetts, John Winthrop, noted in his diary "the return of the young captain out of the wars in England" and he became quite a local hero. His bride charmed everyone. She was tall with brown hair and blue eyes, very pretty. But more than that, she was so kindly and gracious, so true a gentlewoman that the neighbors called her "Lady Ann," an affectionate nickname that she carried all of her long life. She was joined to the church, and her husband was admitted a freeman of the town. Captain George and Lady Ann had thus been officially accepted into the tight little Puritan community.

The young men of Roxbury wanted this dashing cavalry officer for the captain of their Train Band, the local militia company in which every Massachusetts male from 16 to 60 was obliged to serve. Despite his military experience and distinguished war record, the conservatives of the town favored a cooler, steadier head and Denison was beaten by a close vote. Piqued at what he justifiably considered an insult to his obvious qualifications for this position, he left Roxbury a second time. With his wife, their two children, John and Ann, and the two little girls by his first wife, Sarah and Hannah, he moved to the new settlement at New London in Connecticut.

At once he took a prominent part in the affairs of this frontier community. He was elected captain of the Train Band, which must have gratified him greatly. The local records are filled with his activities—census taker and tax assessor, on the building committee of the church, partner in a business project to drain some marshlands, inspector of the port, which paid him fat fees, and finally, deputy to the General Court at Hartford, corresponding to our present state senator. During the year 1654, there are two exceedingly interesting, significant entries about Denison. For services to the community, he was given a land grant of 200 acres. For selling rum to one of his Indian friends, he was fined 24 shillings.

The Captain's land was a dozen miles east of New London in the heart of the old Pequot Indian country. Twelve years before Sassacus, chief of this brave and haughty tribe, had been the first American Indian to realize that the coming of the whites meant the end of his people. He blazed that desperate, bloody, futile warpath, followed by King Philip, by Pontiac, by Geronimo, Crazy Horse, and scores of other chiefs who bravely fought this losing fight. During one dreadful winter the Pequots ravished the Connecticut settlements with firebrand and tomahawk, killing more than sixty of the English, many of them with terrible tortures. The inevitable end came when Major John Mason destroyed the Pequot fort on the Mystic River and followed the remnants of the tribe down the coast to a ruthless slaughter in a swamp at Fairfield west of New Haven.

Across the Mystic River from the charred ruins of the Pequot fort, over the hill skirting the east bank, a smaller stream tumbles down a ledge and winds through a broad meadow to the sea. The Indians called it Pequotsepos, the little river of the Pequots. This pleasant valley was George Denison's land. Here, in 1654, on a rocky knoll overlooking the meadows, he built a rough lean-to of poles and thick slabs of bark, little better than a square, slant-roofed wigwam with a stone fireplace and chimney at one end. Here, he installed his family. Indian attacks still threatened, so with a soldier's instinct he surrounded this rude home with a stout stockade, enclosing a spring and a couple of acres of land.

This old realm of the conquered Pequots, extending from the Thames eastward to the Pawcatuck River, was disputed territory. It was held nominally by Connecticut, but claimed by right of conquest in the Pequot War by Massachusetts. It was the real frontier of the colonies.

Half a dozen self-reliant pioneers had taken up land along the coast. 'Way to the east at the Rocks of the Pawcatuck, the official interpreter of the colony, Thomas Stanton, had built his Indian trading post. Five miles to the west were the first settler, William Chesebrough, and his friend, Walter Palmer, a 68-year-old giant of six-feet-three. Another five miles westward, Palmer's son-in-law, Thomas Miner, located at the head of Quiambaug Cove, while to the west, between Denison's land and the Mystic River, were 300 acres bestowed upon Captain John Gallup, Jr., for his and his father's services in the Pequot War.

This vanguard, and those who joined them during the next few years, were all men of bold, independent spirit. But all of them and their families were devout Puritans. It disturbed them deeply that they could not go to church regularly at New London. It was a half day's journey over a rough Indian trail with two big rivers to cross. But it also irked them that they were ordered to pay tithes for the support of that church and its minister. They appealed twice to New London and twice to the General Court at Hartford for the right to set up their own church and town. Four times their petition was rejected.

Since Massachusetts claimed this territory and the case was now up for decision before the Commissioners of the United Colonies, Captain Denison proposed that they turn to the Bay Colony for permission to "gather" their own church and organize their own local government. This rebellious suggestion was heartily approved. The Captain wrote the petition and because his brother Edward was the son-in-law of the Massachusetts governor, he was elected to deliver it by hand in Boston.

The Commissioners of the United Colonies settled this boundary dispute by giving the territory east of the Mystic River to Massachusetts, and the Captain became the most important figure during the Massachusetts jurisdiction. He was principal town officer, also town clerk, and one of the judicial committee of three to try small cases. Because there was no local minister he was given the unusual right to perform marriages. Four years later, however, the new charter from King Charles II moved the boundary west to the Pawcatuck River, automatically restoring Stonington to Connecticut.

The authorities at Hartford welcomed back all the inhabitants except Captain Denison. He had been the ringleader of the Massachusetts insurgents, so they not only refused him civil rights but fined him 20 pounds for "illegally" performing marriages. These odious distinctions made the Captain boiling mad. He refused to pay the fine and brazenly performed two marriages, one of them of his own daughter. The Hartford Court raised his fine to 100 pounds—a vast sum in those days—and ordered him to appear before them in person: a fine and order he simply ignored.

The Captain was an important figure: he had many friends and influential relatives. Accordingly, after two years' deadlock, the Connecticut General Court remitted its uncollectable fine and begrudgingly forgave him. The Captain seems to have gloried in his invidious position. For years he delighted in "affronting the authority and dignity of the magistrates," questioning their edicts, ridiculing their decisions, plaguing them with all sorts of petitions and complaints.

This spirited, private rebellion tickled his neighbors. They encouraged it by electing Denison to a number of responsible town offices. He was an excellent surveyor and was named to fix the boundaries of the new town of Stonington and also to lay out a road from the ford at the Pawcatuck to the ferry at the Thames "eight rods wide and following so closely as possible the old Indian path." For years this highway was known simply as "The Road." It became a link in the old Boston-New York post road. Now, by-passed by superhighways it is still locally known as the Old Pequot Trail.

The Commissioners of the United Colonies also called upon Captain Denison's services. They appointed him and their interpreter-general, Thomas Stanton, to set aside 8,000 acres as a home for the scattered remnants of the Pequot tribe, the first Indian reservation in North America.

These two firm friends of the aborigines picked a good piece of land, partly wooded hills and partly a fine river bottom, about ten miles back from the coast. Their fellow settlers protested violently that the Indians should be located farther inland, back in rocky hills, away from the settlements. Denison and Stanton stood up stoutly for the rights of their red-skinned friends. Since the arguments of the whites sprang from fear and land greed, two powerful motives, the dispute was bitter and drawn out. Throughout the Captain and the Interpreter fought in the Pequots' interest and worked out a compromise much better for them than the English had first proposed.

The colonists' fears of another Indian uprising were well-founded. Even in the midst of this reservation dispute, the English settlers in Massachusetts discovered that King Philip was sending emissaries to all of the New England tribes, seeking to enlist them in another war of extermination. History repeated itself. As forty years before, Roger Williams' friendship with the Narragansetts kept them from joining the Pequot War, so now the influence of Denison and Stanton induced the tribes of southeast Connecticut—Pequots, Mohegans and Niantics—to become active allies of the whites.

When King Philip struck with the bloody attack on Swanzy, the Connecticut regiment under Major Treat, some 300 men, gathered at Captain Denison's stockade. However, the massacre in Deerfield threatened all western Massachusetts and most of the Conncticut troops hurried to the rescue. The New London companies, seventy-odd men, remained to guard the home front, and they fought in the Great Swamp Fight, December 19, 1675, near Kingston, Rhode Island. Two captains, John Gallup, Jr., and James Avery, and some twenty men were killed. Many were wounded and more crippled by frozen feet and hands. The battered survivors were discharged from active service, leaving Stonington without defences. In this emergency Captain George Denison was commissioned Provost Marshall of the New London and Narragansett countries.

Taking advantage of the withdrawal of most of the colonial troops to the western front, Canonchet, the able war chief of the powerful Narragansetts, led his braves on the warpath. He attacked and burned six settlements, slaughtering men, women, and children, all who did not escape into the snow-drifted woods. Two different Massachusetts companies of fifty men each, he ambushed and wiped out. The booty gathered up represented to the Indians fabulous riches—guns, powder and shot, all sorts of metal implements and utensils, droves of livestock. Canonchet's exultant warriors proudly displayed over two hundred scalps. Cold terror stalked through the English settlements clutching at the bravest hearts.

These disasters called like a bugle to Cromwell's old cavalry officer. Hastily Captain Denison enlisted a company of seventy-five dragoons—mounted soldiers armed each with a musket and a sword—and called together a hundred Pequot and Mohegan allies. He rode deep into the enemy's territory, halted and sent out his scouts. When they reported an unguarded Narragansett village or a war party stealing through the woods, the little troop galloped off to an unexpected attack. Half a dozen such sharp, stunning blows and the Captain and his dragoons would be back at the palisade at Pequotsepos before Canonchet could locate them and muster a counterattack.

During the winter the Captain carried out three such raids. Each was a masterpiece of strategy in this savage guerilla warfare. Timed and planned upon information received from his Indian spies, executed quickly and boldly, they were well-calculated to take full advantage of the surprise attack. In these three daring expeditions Denison lost not a single white cavalryman, and only five of his Indian auxiliaries.

Dismay spread through the Narragansett villages. Doubts and misgivings began to gnaw at the Indians' fickle resolution. Though they continued to burn lonely farmhouses and to tomahawk isolated individuals, their savage attacks on the towns stopped. Their food supplies too, were running low, and with the return of spring, Canonchet picked thirty braves to accompany him on an expedition into the Pawcatuck Valley to gather seed corn for the season's planting.

This risky, but necessary move was promptly reported by Denison's spies. Immediately he grasped this opportunity to come to grips with this crafty sachem. Without waiting to muster the full force of his company, he set off with forty-seven white troopers and about fifty Indians. The order of the day was "Canonchet, dead or alive."

Warned of the English approach, the Narragansetts scattered and fled. Four young Pequots discovered Canonchet creeping up a thickly wooded valley. During the wild chase, he discarded, first, his blanket, then the silver-embroidered coat the English had given him, his gun, and finally his wampum belt, the insignia of his rank. His youthful pursuers closed in and as he was scrambling up the bank of a little stream, he was tackled, thrown, and quickly bound.

The English carried him across the ford of the Pawcatuck into Connecticut territory and at the broad Anguila plain held a council to determine his fate. The proud chief refused to surrender his people, rejected an armistice, and when threatened with death replied boldly, "It is well. I shall die before my heart is soft, before I have said anything unworthy of Canonchet to say."

His execution was approved by George Denison, the commander of his captors, who ordered that he die without being tortured and according to the Indian custom at the hands of three sachems of rank as high as his own. This judgment was scrupulously carried out.

The brutality of the brave chief's death appals us. But we should not forget that after two years of merciless warfare, he refused haughtily any terms of peace. The memories of his broken faith and treacheries, his burnings and bloody slaughters were fresh in every English mind. And, as the Captain clearly foresaw, and pointed out at the time, the removal of this implacable enemy, King Philip's most able lieutenant, would be a death blow to the Indian cause. So it proved. The Narragansett War was over: within six months the power of King Philip was completely broken. It was the last great Indian uprising in New England.

George Denison was one of the great heroes of that desperate struggle. He was honored with resolutions and rewarded with large land grants by the Colony of Connecticut, and the Town of Stonington. Oneco, the Mohegan chief who led his Indian allies, gave the Captain a great feast and presented him with 2,000 acres of tribal lands. Even the Governor of Massachusetts declared that "the services of Captain Denison well deserve never to be forgotten."

He was without doubt the first citizen of Stonington. Almost continuously he was elected to represent the town at the General Court, until the second session of 1694 during which he died on active duty in Hartford and was buried there.

After the Indian war Captain Denison tore down his famous stockade, a gesture of victory, and no doubt he burned its big stakes in the yawning six-foot fireplace of his fine new home. In his "mansion hous," as he described it in his will, he and Lady Ann delighted to give famous dinner parties, "grate feasts," to friends and family (three sons and six daughters, all now married and with a little army of grandchildren) to the Captain's old comrades in arms, to all sorts of visiting notables, even to illustrious Indian sachems.

Pequotsepos Manor, as this hospitable house was called, burned in 1717 on the eve of the wedding of George Denison 3rd, the grandson who had inherited it and the adjoining 200 acres of the original land grant. He at once rebuilt west of the site. Thriftily he salvaged some of the big charred oak beams in the frame from the older building.

The Society and the Homestead

By Helen Wheeler Denison

AUGUST 16, 1930, nearly 700 descendants of Capt. George and Ann Borodell Denison gathered on the hillside east of the Denison Homestead. Beneath a tent spread in the orchard—birthplace of the famous Denison Redding apple—they were guests of Ann Borodell Denison Gates at a delicious luncheon. Afterward they organized the Denison Society, thus realizing a long-cherished dream of their hostess.

A daughter of seafaring Capt. Edgar Denison, Mrs. Gates was brought up in the Homestead by her aunts Sarah and Phoebe from whom her husband, N. Stanton Gates, purchased it and presented it to her. Both envisioned this historic home as a family shrine and museum. With this in view, the Denison Society was incorporated. When she died in 1941 she bequeathed to it the house, some 150 acres (part of the original land grant to Capt. George), and after some personal legacies, "the residue of her estate."

Mrs. Gates was of the eighth generation to live on these premises; of the sixth whose home was the present house, built in 1717 by George Denison 3rd. Thus the Homestead has never been out of the family. When he moved here from New London in 1654, Capt. Denison built a lean-to surrounded by a palisade. Here the family lived until 1663 when he tore down the stockade—since the victory in King Philip's War the Indians were no longer a menace—and built what he call "my mansion hous." It has long been known locally as Pequotsepos Manor.

The following list of owners and their children born here was prepared by Mrs. Herbert S. Davis of Mystic, for many years Secretary of the Society.

Ann Borodell Denison m Nathan Stanton Gates; one son who died in early youth. Upon her death, Feb. 9, 1941, the property was deeded to the Denison Society, Inc.

"Aunt Annie's" ideals have been the Society's inspiration. To realize her oft-expressed intention, the house was restored accurately under supervision of a distinguished antiquarian architect, the late J. Frederick Kelly. It is a unique restoration, successively; that is, each room of a different period; a 1717 kitchen, Revolutionary and Civil War bedrooms, etc.

Since nine generations of Denisons had thrown away nothing but burned matchsticks, ample furniture and household equipments were available to furnish every room authentically with family heirlooms. This was done with the expert advice of Mrs. R. T. H. Halsey, an adviser of Williamsburg. No other house open to the public in New England is so restored and furnished. The Homestead is in a class by itself: a vivid, authentic picture of American homelife during two and a half centuries.

Mrs. Gates was a great nature lover. So as a memorial to her, the Society organized the Pequotsepos Wildlife Sanctuary. We incorporated the embryo organization and gave it minute and financial books and a nest egg of $100. Then our members went out and enlisted 100 Sanctuary members and we turned over to them our 150 acres under a 25-year lease at a rental of $1 a year.

Besides up-keep of the Homestead, the Society maintains the old Denison Cemetery at Pequotsepos Brook—Ann Borodell Denison is buried there—and restored Capt. George's gravestone in the yard of the Center Church at Hartford. We publish the Denison Newsletter, to keep members up-to-date on Society and family happenings. Our annual meetings, the first Saturday in August, are a big, friendly family reunion.

But we have always been much more than a mutual-admiration, ancestor-

PEQUOTSEPOS MANOR

This unique museum of American homelife during eight generations and headquarters of The Denison Society, Inc., was built, just west of Capt. Denison's original house, by his grandson, also George Denison, in 1717. Charred oak beams in its frame were salvaged, according to family tradition, from the earlier home which was destroyed by fire.

The Colonial Kitchen

Pequotsepos Manor is successively restored, that is, each room reproduces a different historical period and every room is completely and accurately furnished solely with Denison family heirlooms — a vivid picture of how our forefathers lived since early colonial days till the 1930's. In all New England no old house open to the public is like it. The big fireplace, complete with the original crane and andirons, displays a superb collection of authentic colonial kitchen equipment. The gigantic wooden mortar and pestle on the hearth was made for Capt. George's son, John, by a Pequot Indian, and note the curved trimmer arch above the lintel, an architectural feature exclusive to southeastern New England — between Hingham and Stonington. This room also exhibits extraordinary lots of wooden plates and pewter. The house contains some exceptional furniture of different periods — a carved oak chair undoubtedly brought from England, a spinet and old grandfather's clock, two maple highboys. Among its unusual family relics are a pair of homemade crow decoys, a wooden Indian doll with rabbit fur for hair, Capt. Edgar Denison's sea chest of camphor wood, a real Civil War period carpet bag, Capt. George's bullet mold and his will written in his own hand.

worshiping club: we have engaged in many worthwhile, outside activities. Especially we have been interested in education. Many grade and high school history classes have been given guided tours of the Homestead. We made a grant to Connecticut College for Women under which Eleanor Fuller wrote a life of George Denison and we published this monograph. For several years, with the Sanctuary, we sponsored a Girl Scout Day Camp on our land.

We have held several series of historical and literary talks, open to the public, the proceeds donated to war-relief and various community causes. The speakers have included such illustrious people as the poet Stephen Vincent Benét, the artist Griffith Coale, the naturalist Roy Waldo Miner; the author-historian ex-Governor Odell Shepard; Presidents Rosemary Park of Connecticut College and Kenneth Brown of Denison University; the college professors, Percy Boynton, literature at Chicago, and William T. Utter, American history at Denison.

Our latest accomplishment is this book. It was sorely needed and has been splendidly achieved. No words can express our gratitude for the task of compiling the genealogical data of Denisons since the publication of the Baldwin and Clift volume accomplished by E. Glenn Denison. He has given us one of the most complete, up-to-date family records published. Every Denison is deeply indebted to him.

In the 80 years since Baldwin and Clift compiled their genealogy, much additional data about the family has been uncovered and many errors have been cleared up. The Trustees wisely called upon the dean of New England professional genealogists, Donald L. Jacobus, who had done much work on our family, to revise Part One of this volume. At his suggestion, the style has been modernized to present the biographical facts more briefly, but also more clearly.

This exacting task was undertaken by Mrs. Howard F. Peck. More than this, she has searched the original town records of many towns, not only in Connecticut, but in Vermont and New Hampshire, where many Denisons settled in the early days of the New England Exodus. Again, much new data was found, many mistakes corrected, and dubious facts clarified. This Denison Genealogy is an accomplishment in which, thanks to these three, we can take justifiable pride.

For the record, it is appropriate to list those who, as Presidents of The Denison Society, have guided our actions and furnished inspiring leadership. These devoted "chiefs of the clan" have given us a practical example of hard work and high ideals, of pride and loyalty, of the obligations we all owe to our pioneering New England ancestry:

The Lady of Pequotsepos*

Ann Borodell Denison Gates (1866-1941)

By Williams Haynes

THE Lady of Pequotsepos is no longer here to welcome us and to each it makes a great difference. This day, that grand, old house, this company, can never be quite the same without Ann Borodell Denison Gates. Her friendship did not touch our lives in passing, it gripped us firmly like the strong clasp of her hand. She was a great friend—a warm, loyal, soul to whom friendship was a vital thing of deeds, not words.

Annie Gates, the gracious hostess, would not have us sad and sorrowing on this day of all days. Hers was a forward-looking, joyous spirit. From girlhood she bubbled over with mischievous merriment—

> Quips and Cranks and wanton Wiles,
> Nods and Becks and wreathed Smiles
> Such as hang on Hebe's cheek
> And love to live in dimples sleek:
> Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
> And Laughter holding both his sides.

Even the great pain she suffered almost constantly during the past few years could not quench her "jests and youthful jollity." Her oldest friends all strike the same chord:

"Nobody ever had a keener sense of humor."

"How she did relish a good joke, even a thrumping practical joke on herself."

"What a story-teller she was!"

"She was always the life of the party"—another reason why she is so sorely missed here today.

The best remembered anecdote of her youth links her name with Annie Williams, who later became Mrs. Noyes Palmer, "the two Annies," a pretty pair of madcaps who kept the class taught by Prof. Kimball in the Mystic High School in an uproar. The distracted teacher was but a few years older than his pupils, a handsome young man with violet-blue eyes and a fine tenor voice, the most favored beau of the village. After some particularly outrageous prank played by the two Annies, he lost his temper and ordered them peremptorily to his desk in front of all the class. The birch rod was not spared in those days. The schoolroom was tense with suppressed excitement. They stood there, the guilty pair, cheeks flushed, their eyes downcast. His eyes blazing, Prof. Kimball regarded them fixedly for several minutes. Would he whip them or send them home in utter disgrace? At last he spoke:

"I beg and beseech you, young ladies, please to behave better in school."

The father of Mrs. Gates was Edgar Denison. A strong man with bushy eyebrows, a generous mouth, and a great flowing beard; a sea captain who sailed his vessel 'round the Horn in the prosperous California trade. From one of his voyages he brought back a beautiful bride, Margaret Mandeville whom he had married in Brooklyn. They lived here with his father, Oliver Denison, and two sisters, Sarah and Phoebe, and here their two daughters Lydia and Ann Borodell were born. When Ann was five years old the elder sister died and her father took the grieving mother off with him on his next voyage. She too, died at sea; and so Annie was brought up by her aunts, Sarah and Phoebe. Every Sunday morning her grandfather drove her over to the Road Church, and she sat between those two good ladies in the family pew while Oliver Denison with his famous long cane sat at the end. And every weekday she trudged two miles over to Mystic Bridge to school.

It was a simple life, but not without its pleasures. She joined the popular Rural Reading Circle, a club of young people over which our own Grace Wheeler for many years presided as president. They met in each other's houses and at each meeting one member read a paper. The two Annies became ringleaders in this group, too, and when Grace Wheeler wrote a great epic poem about the Reading Circle members, she penned the following stanza:

> One Denison among the ranks
> Whose name is hard to rhyme
> We give her, though, our heartfelt thanks
> For recitations fine.

Over on the Groton side, a stocky, young man, full of energy, brimming with high spirits, had been growing up along with Annie Denison. He went to work in Ben Morgan's Meat Market and being ambitious, soon opened a fish market of his own. He began buying direct from the fishermen and shipping to New York. Everybody said that Stan Gates was a rising young man who would go far.

He and Annie were kindred spirits, alert and alive, full of fun. They were married on December 11, 1888, in the Denison Homestead. It was a stormy night: only a few intimate friends of the family were there. The young couple went to New York for their honeymoon and then settled down in a tiny house on Pearl Street in Mystic.

Stanton Gates continued to push ahead. He built the icehouse over the hill on what, when I was a boy, was known as the Slaughter House Hill Road, but which we have squeamishly rechristened Mistuxet Avenue. The old building, long a landmark, was destroyed during the 1938 hurricane. Urged on by ambition, Stanton Gates moved to New York, establishing a wholesale fish business in the famous Washington Market. They had a child, Stanton, Jr., a bright little chap, but never robust, who died of appendicitis when he was seven years old.

While living in New York, they came back for summer vacations, Thanksgiving Day, the Christmas Holidays, and most often they stayed here at Pequotsepos. Aunt Sarah had died. Aunt Phoebe had married Reuben Ford and 25 years ago when he too passed on, Phoebe was anxious to move into the village. This old family home was very dear to Ann Borodell Denison Gates. Her husband bought it from Aunt Phoebe and presented it to her.

After Stanton Gates retired they came here to live. Twenty years ago the man who was her life's comrade died; and she carried on alone, living in our midst the useful, hospitable, inspiring life we knew and shall miss.

One hot, muggy summer day several years ago there had been a great many Denison visitors here to see the old Homestead. Seven times she made the trip from attic to cellar, telling these relatives from Maine, from Ohio, from Carolina the story of this house, pointing out its choice relics, answering their innumerable questions. And she was very, very tired. The shadows of the elms stretched far across the beautiful Pequotsepos meadow as the last party drove off and she went out into the kitchen to brew a cup of tea. Suddenly a peremptory rap on the kitchen door, and when she answered it, there stood a big, bluff, hearty man, an utter stranger.

Something of her weariness must have shown in her face because he said, "Yes, here comes another of those damn Denisons to see your house."

She burst into a hearty laugh. "Come in, come in," she called, shoving open the screen door, "I'll bet your mother was a Gallup."

"By George!" he exclaimed, "how did you know that?"

"Because," she answered slyly, "you said 'damned Denison' so naturally."

And, of course, she showed him the house, from attic to cellar, and answered all his threadbare questions. She was never too tired to welcome a Denison to Pequotsepos.

During her later years this Denison home was the core of her existence. She loved it, every plank and every shingle, every stone in the old walls. She cherished all of its memories, her own and those of the family, and she conceived of Pequotsepos as a shrine for all of us of Denison blood. She organized this family into the Denison Society in order that this home might be preserved as a monument to our ancestors; a graphic document of New England history.

We need in these times just such a stimulating tonic for the good Denison blood in our veins. In these days of trial and the more bitter days that seem to lie ahead, we need encouragement from the memory of the hardships and the handicaps that our forefathers here in Connecticut met and conquered. We all need to cherish the example of the unlagging industry, persistence, and hard-bitten courage of Captain George Denison and his sons, yes, and his grandsons even unto the third and fourth generations.

My kinsfolk, Ann Borodell Denison Gates has left to every one of us a precious heritage. Here in Pequotsepos Manor we have something peculiarly, indubitably our own, our household gods, the lares and penates of an American family. It is her monument; the memorial of our great friend. It is our responsibility; our glorious opportunity.

The Ancestry of Capt. George Denison

The earliest known ancestor of Capt George Denison was

I John Denison lived in Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, England. It is not known where he was born but probably about 1530. The record at Bishop's Stortford shows that John Denison m Agnes Willie 1554. (See sketch of the Willie family) John and Agnes bought home in Stortford of John and Joan Chandler 1563. He died of the Plague Dec 4 1582. His widow m John Gace, May 3 1584. John and Agnes children:

How to Use This Book

By Josephine Middleton Peck

The format of this book is designed to give you the information in a clearly and easily followed manner. Part I lists the direct male descendants of George Denison; that is those having the Denison surname. Part II contains collateral descendants; that is children of daughters. In Part I all descendants from whom there is additional information have an asterisk (*) preceding their number, indicating that they are carried down further in Part I. Those with the dagger (†) preceding the number are carried down in Part II. In Part I all descendants in each generation are kept together—the numbers follow consecutively.

In Part II a different format is used. The number of a person carried forward is the same number that he or she had in Part I. Then their descendants are indicated by the use of that parents's number with a dash and 1, 2, 3, etc., for the children. However, because it is easier to follow each line, all the descendants of the oldest child are given first, then all the descendants of the next child. Thus numbering is not necessarily consecutive.

As an example, check #14 in Part II, i.e., had 9 children given as 14-1 thru 14-9. The oldest child of whom we know offspring is 14-5, so her children start with 14-10, the first free number, and continue until her descendants are given, which in this case is 14-14. Numbering starts with 14-15 for the second child who has offspring, etc.

It might seem more logical to carry on generation by generation as in Part I. But following the style of several modern genealogies and taking into consideration that surnames changed frequently this method makes for a more easily followed "line." A great deal of cross-numbering has been done, and is used to carry down a "line." More specifically, the children of a daughter whose husband's number is given are carried down under his number, except in those cases where the female line was sent in to us.

Capital letters in parenthesis (XX) refer to the source of information which is in the Appendix. In the Index, numbers in Part I refer to the descendants number. Because of the use of hyphenated numbers in the rest of the book, numbers refer to the page on which data will be found.

With fourteen books of manuscript to condense into one genealogy of not more than 1000 pages every possible space-saving device was indicated. To this end we set up our abbreviations—names and other words. These are all listed and explained in the Appendix. Punctuation marks have been eliminated wherever possible—in dates, after abbreviations, etc. Except for large, well-known cities, all towns that do not have the state given are in Connecticut.

The most difficult part of editing has been to give the pertinent personal data in each sketch eliminating the unessential. Our Denisons were not only a prolific group, they have also been very active in church, civic and public life, in business and professions—a most interesting family. In shortening this biographical material every effort was made to keep the essence of the subject's life, but a great deal had to be left out. As was to be expected, the data submitted varied tremendously; some of our members just gave names; others, complete information; and still others were quite profuse.

It was my intention to consolidate the information and make it as consistent as possible. Frequently the name of the same person sent in by two descendants is spelled differently. We have been dogmatic about spelling "Denison" and "Chesebrough:" the first always with the single n, the second as it is spelled above.

The late president of Harvard, A. Lawrence Lowell wrote "The mark of an educated man is the ability to make a reasoned guess on the basis of insuffient information. "With "genealogist" substituted for "educated man" it seems to me this quotation is quite applicable. We are sorry to have been unable to tie in several untraced lines in the Appendix, but so far we did not have the data to make the "reasoned guess."

With Mr. Denison I wish to add my appreciation to the many descendants who sent in material; to Mr. Jacobus for his stimulating expert advice; to Mr. Haynes and Mr. Hatch of the Genealogy Committee; and to the typists, the proofreaders, our type-setter (who was both patient and proficient) and to the Stonington Publishing Co. who helped prepare this book for publication.

DIRECT DESCENDANTS of Captain George Denison (1620-94)

1 GEORGE DENISON bpt Bishop's Stortford, Herts, England, Dec 10 1620; d Hartford Oct 23 1694; m (1) Bridget Thompson bpt Preston Capes, Northants, England, Sept 11 1622, d Roxbury, Mass Aug 1643 dau John and Alice (Freeman) Thompson; m (2) in England ca 1645 Ann Borodell, d Stonington Sept 26 1712, ae 97 (g s, Elm Grove).

George's bro, Gen Danl Denison wrote in 1672 "My two brothers, Edward and George had all the Estate of my father left between them, being both marryed long before my father's death; my Brother George buried his first Wife in the year 1643, went into England was a souldier ther above a year, was at the Battle of York, or Marston Moor, where he did good service, was afterward taken Prisoner, but got free and having married a second Wife he returned to New England the year before our Mother died, and not long afterward removed himself to New Ldon near whereunto (viz) at Stonington he now liveth, having 3 sons John, William, and George, 4 or 5 daughters . . . 3 of Daughters are marryed to Stanton, Palmer and Cheesebrook (sic) all living at present in the same town."

The tradition that George served in Cromwell's army is thus verified. The story is also told that he was wounded and was nursed at the home of John Borodell, a cordwainner (leather merchant) of Cork, by his dau Ann whom he married for his second wife.

He served as Deputy to the Conn Gen Court from New London Sept 1653, May 1654 and Feb 1657, and from Stonington Oct 1671, Oct 1674, May 1678, Oct 1682, May and Oct 1683, May, July and Oct 1684, May and Oct 1685, May 1686, May 1687, Sept 1689, May Sept and Oct 1693, and May 1694. When 1st mentioned in Conn Col Recds he is called "Captain," based upon his service and commission in England. He served on the War Comm for New London in 1653 when war threatened with Dutch. Although 56 he served as Capt in King Philip's War 1676 in command of New London County troops and second in command of the Conn Army under Maj Robert Treat. He was ap'pted Provost Marshal May 1677. He was Capt of volunteer troops against the enemy Sept 1689. (See Conn Col Recds Vol I and biog. sketch in fore of this book.)

NOTE: Chas #832 named 1st dau Est for his mother, but a later dau Jerusha C prob for a good stepmother. Jas #289 had 5 chn according to Family Bible. It seems that B & C Gen gives family to Geo #292 that prob belongs here. There is no history for Geo's family, and meagre data supplied by Mrs. Leach could have been confusing. (See p 59 B & C) Chas and Jas are named as chn of Jas #289, and Est would be named for her mother.

NOTE: Children are rearranged to fill gaps between those with known dates of b. Joseph placed by B & C Gen as perhaps son of Wetherell #85 but his chn well accounted for. We know that Geo #100 had a son Geo and other chn, not fully known. Joseph traditionally had brothers Geo and Stanton; the mother of #100 was a Stanton. Joseph named chn Geo and Han, which would be for both parents, and a son Robt, which could be for his distinguished grandfather. We therefor place Joseph as prob son of Geo #100.

We thought it not Prudent to venture in . . . Bore away to Northerd and saw . . . the shore everywhere Perpendicular." Those were the words used to describe the finding of a continent—Antartica. Years later in a letter to a friend Frank T Bush, Am Consul at Hong Kong he wrote "he (Capt Fabian Gottlieb von Bellingshausen of Russia) treated me with great kindness for the services I rendered him in extricating his ships from a dilemma he found himself . . . Among other things I informed him of our Trip to the South in Latt 68 degrees and the discovery of a Land . . . and it was him that named it Palmer's Land."

Eliot Quoted on Denisons

WILLIAM DENISON—"John Eliot was grieved when his old friend William Denison and son Edward who scarcely disguised their sympathy for Anne Hutchinson, were disarmed for 'seditious libel' and thrown out of the church. Another son enlisted in Irish Wars. That the Denisons were not banished was perhaps because one son married Patience Dudlay, dau of Gov. Dudley, with whom they lived. That particular Sunday he was pleased to see William Denison and his sons Edward and George back in the church after all these years, and sitting squarely in the Dudley pew. They had made their peace at last.

from "John Eliot" by Carleton Beals, published by Julian Messner, Inc., 8 W 40th St, New York 18, New York.

From church records at Roxbury, Mass.—

"Margaret, wife of William Denison, Sr. It pleased God to work upon her heart and changed it in her ancient years, after she came to this land and joined the church in the year 1632."

WILL OF JOHN BORODEL

From New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Boston 1906
"Genealogical Gleanings in England."

Borrowdale or Borodel,

"John Borrowdale of London, gentleman, 2 September 1667, proved 18 November 1667. By an indenture of Lease bearing date 12 June 1665 the Right Hon. Philip Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery did devise and grant unto Richard Arnold of London, merchant, all his mines, lead ore and copper ore in Glamorgan, for term of one and twenty years etc. which lease the said Richard hath assigned and set over to me by writing dated 19 July 1665. I give said lease to my two sons John and Benjamin, the profits to be equally paid betwixt them at their respective ages of one and twenty years, my wife Anne my executrix to manage the same, in the meantime, according to her discretion. If these two die etc., then I give the same to my two sons Broughton and Francis. If they die then to my two daughters Anne and Rebecca and to the child now in the womb of my wife. The rest to be divided into three equal parts, one third whereof I give to my dear wife Anne, another third I give to my children John, Benjamin, Broughton, Francis, Anne, Rebecca, and the child now in the womb of my wife, at the age of one and twenty etc., which my son John will attain 5 January 1675, Benjamin 3 June 1680, Broughton 28 May 1684, Francis 29 April 1686, daughter Anne 17 March 1681, Rebecca 4 Jly 1683.

Out of the other third of my estate I give unto my loving sisters Anne Denison, Alice Hincks and Margaret Mitchell three pounds apiece as tokens of my love, to my wife's father (and my dear friend) to my sister to my brother and sister Thatcher and to Mr. Joseph Whestone twenty shillings apiece to buy them rings. Thirty pounds to such godly and religious persons who are necessities. To John Mosyer and William Moses and to my brother Mr. Andrew Broughton forty shillings apiece. The rest to my sons and the unborn child . . .

The rest of the will does not mention the family unless the Francis Allen Esq. deceased was his father-in-law.

"31 March 1643. John Borrodale, son of John Borrodale, of Cumberland Yeoman apprenticed to Francis Allen, Citizen & Goldsmith of London for 8 years."

From A. T. Butler. College of Arms, 18 October 1935.

"As to the house in Cork, Ireland, which Ann Borodale inherited, it may have been acquired by her father, as was a large amount of Irish real estate which was confiscated by Cromwell and handed over to his soldiers and also acquired by Englishmen in England to whom a vast number of parcels of real estate were sold at nominal prices by Cromwell's government. These purchasers were called Irish Adventurers and a list of many of them is extant in State Papers here."

From C. A. Hoppin, 75 Chandery Lane, London, Apr. 11, 1934.

p 569 to p 571 In the ANCESTRY of BRIDGET THOMPSON there are too many generations. Until the SUPPLEMENT is published reference could be made to New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 65, Jan 1921 to the article by G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr on "Genealogical Research in England"; also other articles by him in the Register and "The Barony of Coggs" pp 309-320 by Moriarty giving complete details and proof of this family (Giffard) and its descendants.

p 573 In the GALLUP ANCESTRY the royal line through Hannah Lake wife of Capt John Gallup, Jr., was disproved in the N E Historical and Genealogical Register by Walter Goodwin Davis. Vol 84, p 403.

p 574-A7 m Capt Kingsbury, son of Lt Jos and Love (Ayer) Kingsbury.
Note: re John son and grandson of Maj Gen Danl Denison we have conflicting data. In the letter written by Maj. Denison to his grandchildren (see N E Historical and Genealogical Register Apr 1892 p 127) he states that his son John d Jan 9, 1670 "not yet one and thirty years." So it is not probable that John Denison who was granted 6 acres of land in Ipswich Feb 7, 1647 was the son of Maj Danl, for he would have been about 7 yrs old. As to Rev John's wife Ipswich in the Mass Bay Colony states John d 1689 leaving his widow Elizabeth Saltonstall. Further research will have to be done for the SUPPLEMENT.

p 576 A57 m Capt Danl Mason son of Maj John Mason.
A58 d June 17 1721.

A60a ASA HARRIS b Nov 10 1680. Had: (this generation was omitted.)
A79 ASA HARRIS as in book.

p 577 A84 delete "then to Manitoba."
A87 dau of Dr. Frank Norman Howard of Lynn, Mass.
